Bookmentor | And Again, Spring

We all work for the people we love

Written by Harim, Illustrated by Kyungae Ji
 February 15, 2024 | 220×280mm(Hardcover) | 40 pages
 ISBN 978-89-6319-563-6 77810

Singer Harim's poignant words and picture book artist Ji Kyung-Ae's beautiful illustrations capture the wishes of all of us who work.

Singer Harim's Singalong Challenge song is a picture book with illustrations by Bologna Lagacci Award-winning artist Kyung-Ae Ji. Singer Harim's Singalong Challenge, which began with the desire to return home safely after a day's work and to have a day where work and rest can coexist, has now gone beyond song to visit working people with a picture book. It will be a time to reflect on the value of work, the importance of those who work, and the families we love.

Whether you're timid or adventurous It's okay, it's all good!

One day, a big crisis came to the timid Gamjang-Rock and the adventurous Kkamjang-Rock: a crack in the ground. Just like their different personalities, the two rocks dealt with the crisis in completely different ways. Whatever choice they made, they stayed true to their nature, and they both got along great, with new experiences to look forward to. Just like Gamjang-Rock and Kkamjang-Rock, there are no right or wrong answers to life, and everyone can be happy if they accept themselves as they are and stay true to their own way of living.

With witty stories and pictures
Global environmental issues that deeply touch our hearts.

This is a picture book that deals with global environmental issues through a person who lives alone and enjoys solitude in a place that exists somewhere between heaven and earth. The person in the picture book lived in a small house in front of the sea of clouds and occasionally enjoyed fishing for treasure. But one day, live animals kept coming. It is said that animals caught on fishing rods can no longer live on Earth. Fishing lines have become an escape route for animals on Earth. What on earth happened to Earth?
